Vicar's Letter for December 2023

My dear people,

This month the people of God begin our Advent journey. The days are short, and the darkness grows deep as we hear the words of the prophets encouraging us to wake up and get ready to meet the King. We are waiting for the light to come.

John the Baptist calls us all to repent and change our lives and show this by a new way of living. God's word calls us to turn from darkness to light.

Mary says yes to God's plan so God himself can enter the world in the flesh. And now it is our turn to say yes like her so Jesus can be born in Hoar Cross and Newchurch today.

When the Northern hemisphere is at its darkest, a star shines brightly in the winter night. It is Jesus the Morning star proclaiming the world's new day.

From his manger bed in Bethlehem, a new light and joy shines brightly and God himself enters the stage of human history as one of us. How much our world needs that peaceful light of Jesus to shine in the darkness, not least the Ukraine and the Holy Land of Christ's birth, death and resurrection; we think too of the countless refugees across the face of the earth which he came to save and redeem. God who became fully human in Jesus feels their pain and heartbreak. God is with us and them and knows from the inside what it is to suffer. We enfold them in our prayer.

With the shepherds watching and waiting in the night we hear the angels' song, 'Glory to God in the highest and peace to his people on earth.' We pray for a true and lasting peace for every human heart and pledge ourselves to be peace makers and reconcilers in our relationships and encounters. Because God has become human, every human being matters to him and us. We see his face in our brothers and sisters especially in those who suffer. We reach out to help and heal, to comfort and relieve in real practical ways, as far as we can.

We hurry to Bethlehem, the House of Bread to see this thing that has come to pass and kneel and adore the mystery of God's love revealed to us and the world in the baby son of Mary. Jesus shows us the human face of God and we see his face in every human being. Like the wise men we are a pilgrim people on the move, looking out for Jesus the king, following the star of faith.

All these beautiful, rich and poetic themes are celebrated in this lovely season of Advent. Don't miss out. Look carefully at the rich and tasty menu on offer this month on the calendar and put the words into flesh.

When Jesus comes, may we all be ready to greet him eager and watchful with lamps burning brightly to welcome him. Prepare the way of the Lord – make his paths straight!

Here is a prayer from Christian Aid you can use:

Christian Aid
We believe in life before death

Thank you scandalous God

for giving yourself to the world

not in the powerful and extraordinary but in weakness and the familiar

in a baby, in bread and wine.

*Thank you for offering at journey's end, a new beginning, for setting, in the poverty of a stable the richest jewel of your love;
for revealing in a particular time and place your light for all nations.*

*Thank you for bringing us to Bethlehem, House of Bread,
where the empty are filled and the filled are emptied;
where the poor find riches and the rich recognise their poverty;
where all who kneel and hold out their hands are unstintingly fed.*

May the peace and joy of Christmas fill every heart and home in Hoar Cross and Newchurch – a very happy and holy Christmas to you all.

Your friend and priest and with my special love and prayers,
Canon Paul

Who was - Julian of Norwich - who lived in Norwich in the 14th and early 15th century.

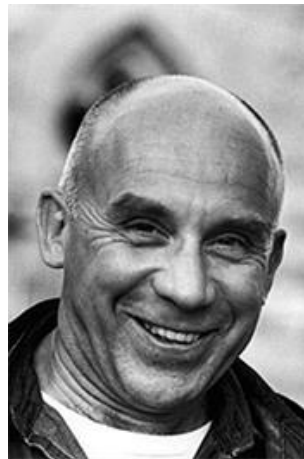

In her first fifty years, Julian was a multi-faceted woman who lived and worked in the world. Then, during the last twenty-five years of her life, she chose to become an anchoress (someone who, for religious reasons, withdraws from secular society to be able to lead an intensely prayer-orientated, ascetic, or Eucharist-focused life), a vowed religious living by herself in a small room, called an anchorhold, attached to the parish church of St Julian at Conisford in Norwich. It was during these years that she completed the Long Text of her Revelations, and ~became much revered as a wise counsellor to all who sought her spiritual advice at her anchorage window. Today, Julian's theology continues to be an inspiration to those who long to be embraced by the love of Jesus Christ. and spent much of her life as an In May of 1373, at the age of thirty and a half, Julian of Norwich was stricken by a severe illness and became convinced she was dying. Instead, she received extraordinary visions of Christ on the cross. She recovered fully to write her very personal account of the Sixteen Revelations of Divine Love that she received from the Lord. This is the first book known to have been written by a woman in the English language.

In both the Short and Long Texts of her book, Julian documented the intimate details of her visions and locutions for her contemporaries, her evencristens (fellow Christians), as well as for us, more than six hundred years later. She insisted that "Our Lord wants us to know" about God's unconditional love, mercy, and grace; about the godly will at the very core of our being; about the lack of "wrath or blame" in God. Julian also developed a dynamic theology of the Motherhood of God that speaks to both women and men in every age.

Although a contemporary of the English poets Geoffrey Chaucer and William Langland, Julian was, by her own account, unlettered; that is, she could not read or write Latin and as such she could not study theology at Oxford or Cambridge, because in her medieval world women were not allowed to pursue higher education. Nevertheless, Julian taught herself to write Middle English with such consummate clarity, profound imagery, and rich vocabulary that she has been called "the first woman of English Letters." She also developed a mystical theology that was second to none during the fourteenth century, and which continues to break barriers in our own twenty-first century.

The simple fact that Julian was a laywoman who dared to write mystical theology in English (despite repeated Church edicts issued against any layperson teaching or writing theology, or "making books" in the vernacular, under pain of excommunication or even death) sends a strong message of empowerment to women of faith all over the world who struggle for the right to speak. Thomas Merton called Julian "one of the most wonderful of all Christian voices" and "the greatest English theologian." Her timeless voice is one of prophetic hope and vision that we, in the twenty-first century, desperately need to hear. She is, indeed, a mystic for all seasons.

In our suffering and violent world, when we may be tempted to lose hope, Christ's words to Julian resonate across the ages, as reassuring and as imperative as they were in May of 1373, when she first heard them: All shall be well, and all shall be well, and thou shalt see thyself that all manner of thing shall be well.

Postcard from a Parishioner—Every Cloud

I have been lucky enough recently, to witness some beautiful sunsets, which of course need the supporting cast of clouds. In fact, you could say I have become an avid sky watcher since moving to Forest Lodge. That first year of balmy summer evenings, we would eat alfresco, every chance available. Magnificent sunsets would see us still lingering on the patio, long after the meal was over. We arrived on the 11th of April in 2017; with its typically showery weather, hampering the removal men unloading our precious boxes and bits of furniture. That first evening saw a double rainbow stretch across the sky above the rooftops of our main house and my 'granny flat'. We all felt it foretold good times ahead.

A balcony off my front door soon had a seat; as well as one on the back patio of the main house ..... where more often than not, this 'Granny in residence ' could be found. Not to seem idle, there would always be a bit of craft work on the go; but, if truth be known, my hands lay quiet for most of the time, as I watched the clouds. It is a pastime of which I never seem to tire, because, just like fingerprints, every sky will be different. Even these blustery days, if there is a sunny spell, I will don my parka, grab a coffee and sit somewhere sheltered, to watch the sky.

To the backdrop of clouds of every shape and size, I have watched the comings and goings of local bird life, small planes circling from the local Airfield and larger ones leaving jet streams. But it will always be clouds forming and moving, either gently feathering or ominously tumbling, that will hold my attention and leave me in awesome reflection. I'm not surprised our early theologians chose the sky for God's heavenly dwelling place. I'm reminded of a very thought provoking comment from my oldest son when only three. The sun was sending spears of light through the clouds on our walk one day. "Look Mummy," he said in awe, "God has left his door open".

In these days of sadness, that threaten to overwhelm us, I'm reminded of other words.

'Every cloud has a silver lining'. A silver lining alludes to the unseen part of a dark cloud that is backlit by the sun, making it all silvery and shiny round the edges. A metaphor of course, referring to the darkness that can overpower any glimmer of hope. But, no matter how bad a situation might seem, there is good to be found. Optimism in other words . And don't we need that, when yet another horrific news announcement sends a wave of grief washing over us? Optimism with a big capital O . With Christmas just around the corner, I can already feel the stirrings of this. The shops are now bedecked in festive attire and are displaying a multitude of goodies we might be tempted to buy. Family and friends are organising to be together for this wonderful occasion and everywhere there is an atmosphere of anticipation. A collective hope, that Christmas will bring peace and joy to this broken world of ours. The silver lining to all the stormy clouds that fill our skies at the moment.

Wishing you a wonderful Christmas.

It's a Dog's Life

Frens—I've got sad news and good news. Mum says it's always best to do the sad news first so here goes – my fren Milo has gone to sleep for ever. His hooman told Mum that he'd got more of the cancer I told you about and he could have ended up in a lot of pain and not enjoying himself. I miss not seeing him lying by his gate and us touching noses. And the way he used to bark at me when I left (he wanted me to stay) but I wouldn't want him to be unhappy.

BUT – Walter's eye is completely better! Isn't that great? His hooman and vet are reelly surprised how well he's done but I'm very pleased for him. So we still see each other on our walks – him with his wheels, me being very glad to see him. I can still sneak up on him 'cos he can't reelly see anything coming behind him, which I find very funny – 'though I don't think he does!

I spent a couple of days at a nice kennels Mum has found for me while she went away. They're ever so nice there – take me for a couple of walks each day and they have a good play area where there's lot of balls and things. They took some nice photos of me enjoying myself and put them on something called Face Book? Not sure what that is, but Mum liked seeing the pictures. (I think she misses me when I go away...) She always asks if I've been good (as if I'd be anything else!) and they say I'm good but 'bonkers' (whatever that means). Mum says she can't understand how I can be both but they seem happy enough and Mum says I'll be going back there again soon - hurrah.

Anyway, that's it for now. Hopefully no sad news next time.

December is the 12th month (and last month) in our modern-day Gregorian calendar (as it was in the preceding Julian calendar).

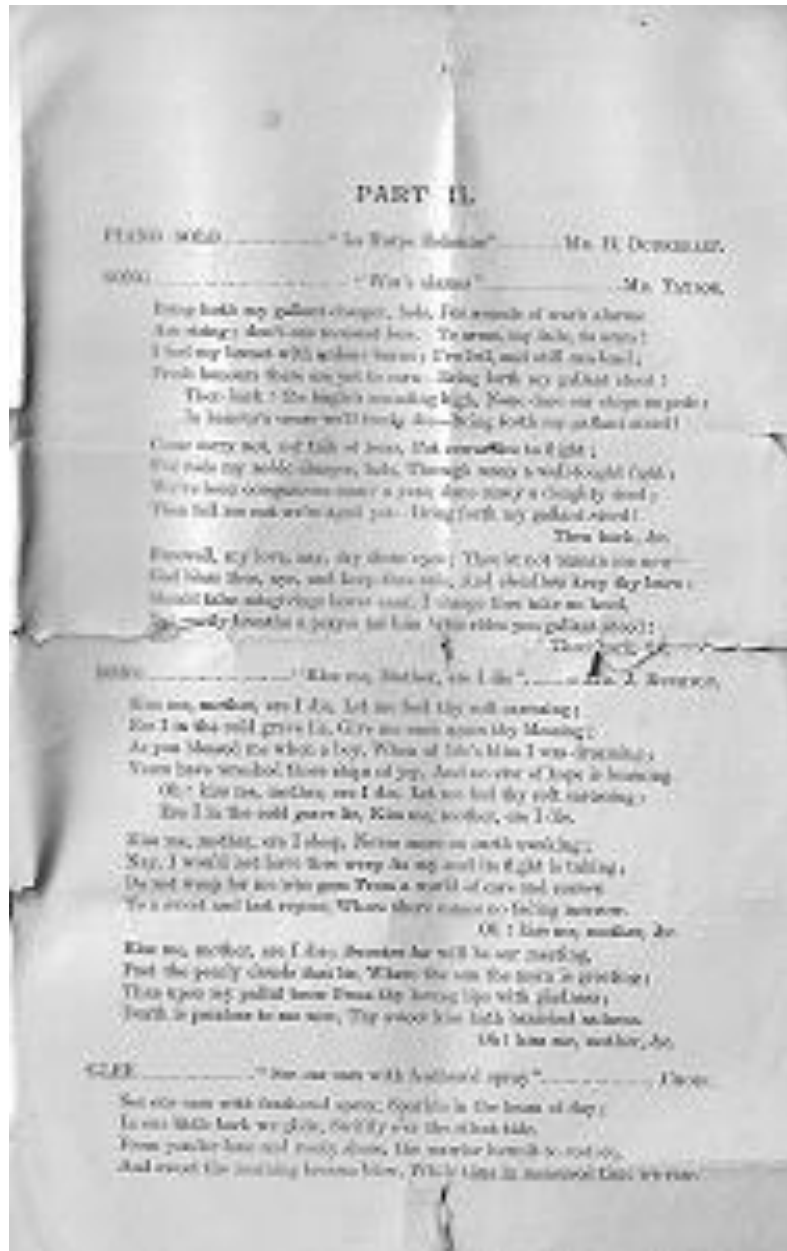

However, it was originally the 10th month of the Roman calendar (until 153 BC). Hence, “December” comes from the Latin word decem, meaning “ten.”

Back in Roman times, the calendar only had ten months and began with March! The winter period was not even assigned months because it was not an active time for military, agriculture, or civil life.

The month of December originally consisted of 30 days. When January and February were added to the calendar (around 700 BCE), December was shortened to 29 days. Then, in the subsequent Julian calendar, two days were added to December, making it 31 days long.

A new name for December came into being after many Anglo-Saxons were converted to Christianity. In line with their new-found beliefs, they called December “Heligh Monath,” which translates into “Holy Month.” A second name that the Anglo-Saxons had for December was “Yule Monath,” which relates to the custom of burning a Yule log during this month as a part of the pagan Yule celebrations. While many of the Yule practices have been lost over time, some of them, such as burning a Yule log, is still celebrated in various parts of the world today.

Editor's Note

Our closing date for the next edition of the Newsletter is 8 January 2024. We'll be having a 'combined' edition for January and February and it will be published on 13 January 2024. The March edition will be published on 2 March with a closing date of 26 February. (I'll put a reminder in the January/February edition!)

I continue to encourage you to contribute to the Newsletter. I am sure many of you will make fond memories of the coming season of Christmas. Why not share them? There are a few faithful contributors to whom we give grateful thanks for their continued support. It would be lovely to add to their number.
